

Franklin County Regional Airport (N68) is a general aviation airport located in Green Township, approximately three miles northeast of the borough of Chambersburg, about 20 miles north of the Maryland border. The airport supports a wide variety of general aviation operations, including recreational flying, agricultural spraying, corporate and business flying, and aerial inspections. The airport has considerable landside facilities, including more than 11,000 square feet of hangar space, nine t-hangar units, and an administration building. The airport is also home to the only full-service skydiving center in South Central Pennsylvania, Chambersburg Skydiving Center, which operates during the summer season. With its wide range of facilities, skydiving center, prime location, and various GA activities seen on-site, the airport is truly a vital part of the southern Pennsylvania region.
